Accused man 'strong family person'

A 59-year-old Ottawa man accused of breaking into a 101-year-old war veteran's home last week, tying him up, putting a bag over his head and robbing him will remain in custody as he waits to for a psychiatric assessment.

The lawyer for the accused, Ian Bush, and the Crown agreed to adjourn the home invasion case until Christmas Eve for an appearance in mental health court.

Ottawa police arrested Bush Saturday after a man broke into the Second World War veteran Ernest Côté's Rockcliffe Park apartment Thursday morning. Côté was not injured in the incident.

Bush's brother, Norm Bush, told reporters outside the Elgin Street courthouse Monday his family is "very grateful" that Côté escaped unscathed.

"Our hearts and thoughts obviously go to the Côté family," said Norm. "This is a particularly difficult time of the season, so we hope that Mr. Côté and his family as well will be able to take some comfort over the Christmas break."

Norm said he was not aware of any negative feelings his brother might have toward veterans. In fact, he said, both of their parents were veterans of the Second World War.

"He's always been a very strong family person, so something like this to come forward, these kind of accusations and allegations, for all of us is a big shock," said Norm Bush. Ian Bush has a wife, three adult children and grandchildren.

Police arrested Bush at his Orleans home after surveillance video allegedly caught him using Côté's stolen credit card.

Defence lawyer Geraldine Castle-Trudel said even though there is video footage, what has been disclosed is still a one-sided version of events.

"Just because you read a police report ... that's the police's view of what they think happened. That may or may not be correct," said Castle-Trudel.

"People are presumed to be innocent even though it may look on the surface that it's very clear-cut."

Bush was charged with attempted murder, robbery with violence, forcible confinement, breaking and entering, and two counts of using credit cards obtained by crime.

She said it is very unusual for a 59-year-old to with no criminal history to commit a violent crime.

Cruiser crashes into light pole

Collision. But police news release makes no mention of cruiser

SEAN MCKIBBIN
sean.mckibbin@metronews.ca

An Ottawa police cruiser on its way to a call about a man lying in the snow struck a light standard downtown, but you would never have known it from the news release issued by Ottawa police Sunday night.

The initial news release emailed by Acting Staff Sgt. Jamie Aldrich said, "The Ottawa Police Service is advising that the following roads will be closed due to a broken light standard at this intersection. The following routes will be affected:

"Laurier Avenue West will be closed between Kent and Bay Street.

"Slater Street at Lyon Street closed southbound."

Follow-up emails mentioned only roads reopening. The email doesn't say when the incident happened.

On Twitter, meanwhile, regular citizens were telling the public that a police car had been involved in a collision.

Lila Al-Ghateni took this photo of the crash and posted it to Twitter Sunday night. CONTRIBUTED

Lila Al-Ghateni, tweeting with the handle @Crystal1212121, tweeted out pictures of the crash around 10:30 p.m. She said the crash sounded like an explosion and drew many people from her apartment building.

The building sits on the southwest corner of the intersection of Laurier Avenue West and Lyon Street and the cruiser plowed into the light standard just outside the front door.

"It looked like he was chasing someone," she said, explaining that she had been on her seventh-floor balcony smoking.

Her neighbour, Amanda Strickland, said she had also been out smoking on her balcony on the eighth floor. She said that the car had been westbound on Laurier Avenue and appeared to crash after trying to make a turn south on Lyon. She added after the car turned south, it was obscured by the corner of her building.

But there may be another element to the collision. Gatineau resident and local technology consultant Phil Read told Metro he was driving his daughter home around 10 p.m. and was southbound on Lyon when a cruiser passed him at high speed.

As he saw the cruiser retreat south, he noticed another cruiser on Laurier and saw the southbound cruiser attempt to avoid the other vehicle. Read said he wasn't sure which cruiser crashed.

He said he stopped his car to see if the two officers were all right, and they indicated yes and told him he did not need to stay to make a statement, so he decided to leave.

Contacted by Metro Monday morning, Ottawa police spokesman Marc Soucy said he did not know why the news release did not mention the police cruiser, as the media-relations office is closed on weekends.

Soucy said the call being responded to by the officer driving the cruiser was designated "Priority 1" and the collision is under investigation. He said no one was injured.

He was unable to say what happened concerning the person lying in the snow.

Sally Ann $90,000 short of its goal

The Salvation Army is still $90,000 short of this year's $600,000 Christmas Kettle goal with just two days left in the campaign.

The campaign supports individuals and families with emergency food, warm clothing and utility assistance during the cold winter months and all year round.

The campaign also supports the Emergency Disaster Services program, which supports victims and first responders during crises. The group says its services support over 20,000 people in need each year in the Ottawa area.

Five-dollar donations can be made on mobile devices by texting HOPE5040 to 45678. Donations can also be made online at FilltheKettle.com, at SalvationArmy.ca, by calling 1-800-SAL-ARMY, or via mail to The Salvation Army Public Re-

Volunteers step up for Red Nose

Gatineau's Operation Red Nose organizers say people from Ottawa-Gatineau responded in great numbers to a call for volunteers, as the organization recorded more than 700 volunteers in attendance for last weekend alone.

The group says it drove about 600 motorists home safely. The group says since Dec. 5 it's given out 1,316 rides with 1,429 volunteers, collected $29,000 in donations for the benefit of youth amateur sport, and logged about 50,000 km of driving.

Volunteers are taking "a well-deserved break for Christmas" and will be back in service Dec. 26, 27, 30 and 31. Until then, organizers are reminding everyone to plan ahead, so that they don't drink and drive.

Would-be volunteers can print out a registration form at operationnezrouge.com after selecting "Outaouais" region. Once completed and signed, the form must be returned by email to outaouais@operationnezrouge.com or by fax at 819-771-3376.

Ottawa artist Bhat Boy in front of his new piece, unveiled Monday at OC Transpo headquarters. TREVOR GREENWAY/METRO

Bhat Boy's vision of Ottawa unveiled at OC Transpo office

True colours. Artist paints whimsical, vibrant tribute to Canada's capital

TREVOR GREENWAY
trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

Ottawa artist Bhat Boy doesn't see Ottawa as a big city.

Instead, the painter sees Canada's capital as a gathering space — and idealistic utopia where everyone knows each other and helps one another out.

"It's almost like a medieval village where we can recognize people and where you can go from A to B instead of being an intimidatingly large city, but rather a community," said Bhat Boy.

The City of Ottawa commissioned artist unveiled that vision Monday morning with a 15-foot mural mounted in the lobby of the OC Transpo administration building on St. Laurent Boulevard.

The vivid painting blends the old with the new, incorporating vintage street cars and trolleys with modern busses, trains and Ottawa light rail transit. A starry sky hovers above the firmament, twinkling over Parliament Hill.

The piece is intricate to say the least, with its panoramic view encompassing everything Ottawa — from ice skating on the canal to the iconic Chateau Laurier. You can even see the Gatineau Hills to the north — picture-perfect in purple. Your eyes could dart across the canvas for years before noticing every little detail in the piece and that was the whole plan, says Bhat Boy.

"I like there to be lots of things in the paintings, so that (the viewer could've) been looking at the painting for a year, but then they can still come in the morning and have coffee and still see something that they have never seen before," said Bhat Boy.

"I feel very privileged to know that one day I am not going to be here, but my art and the things that I have created in life are going to continue to go on and make people happy even when I am no longer here."

Bhat Boy's work was selected ahead of that from 21 other artists who were fighting for the commission job, but it was the fact that most of Ottawa can relate in some way or another to the painting was what made it stand above the rest.

"I think this painting is very engaging," said architect Alex Leung, who designed the lobby renovation at the OC Transpo office.

"I think everybody can relate to the theme of the painting."

"It's very friendly, almost jovial. It's very appropriate for the lobby space. As an architect, part of the renovation of the lobby is to make it a lot more user friendly and welcoming, and I think the painting anchors the lobby."

Ring in the New Year with Scotland

Scottish Society of Ottawa. Local group takes advantage of time difference to get a jump on New Year's celebrations

trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

The Scottish Society of Ottawa has a solution for all of those young parents whose small kids will not make it until midnight to ring in the New Year: Celebrate it at 7 p.m. when Scotland turns the calendar page.

The society's Hogmanay New Year's Eve bash at Lansdowne Park will boast two countdowns — one to mark midnight in Scotland at 7 p.m. Ottawa time and another to ring in the capital's new year at midnight.

"In Scotland, New Year's Eve or Hogmanay is a big deal. When I was growing up, it was bigger than Christmas," said the society's Executive Director, John Iverson, adding that Scots who like the sauce don't have to worry about sustaining a two-day hangover.

"There was always a two-day public holiday — the first and the second day of January — as people recovered from New Year's Eve."

It's a good way for the children to ring in the new year and make resolutions themselves (such as to eat more candy or to stop eating broccoli in 2015).

"People come along with their kids and they know they are not going to be able to stay until midnight, but they can still celebrate New Year's with the kids," added Iverson.

The party features family-oriented events all night long including face-painting, traditional ceilidh dancing and ice skating on the brand new outdoor rink at Lansdowne.

For parents who rocked the classic '80s metal look will want to pull out that ripped jean jacket and those acid-wash jeans, because glam rock

New Year's Eve transit

OC Transpo is also offering free bus and train rides throughout the city after 8 p.m. on New Year's Eve.

- Extra service. "New Year's Eve is one of the busiest social nights of the year and thanks to OC Transpo and its generous partners residents once again have a safe, worry-free option for travelling," said Mayor Jim Watson.

Can-con favorite Glass Tiger is headlining the event. You can almost guarantee the Scottish-Canadian group will drop classics like "Don't Forget me When I'm Gone," and "Somebody," before the sky lights up with fireworks at midnight.

The entire event is completely free and motorists who don't want to drive home after they've had a few can leave their cars underground at Lansdowne for $10.

Man heads back to court

Charlie Manasseri, the man convicted of second-degree murder for the 2005 death of Brian Fudge, will appear in court for a bail hearing Tuesday. Co-accused in student slaying appears in court

One of the accused in the homicide of a Carleton University engineering student made a brief court appearance Monday and will return to court after Christmas.

Steve Kozielo, 18, was charged with one count each of manslaughter and robbery.

A justice of the peace ordered him to return to court by video link from jail on Dec. 29 after he speaks with his lawyer this week.

Kozielo was jointly charged with John Ruch, 19, who faces the same two charges in connection with the killing of Tausif Chowdhury, 23.

Chowdhury's body was found on a footpath behind the South Keys transit station on Nov. 27.

Indiegogo get your music out there

'A win-win situation'

Freelance music writer uses crowd funder for PR venture's e-commerce

TREVOR GREENWAY
trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

A struggling freelance writer in Ottawa has launched a permanent crowdfunding campaign to support his ongoing PR work that aims to give up-and-coming bands exposure.

Zachary Houle says he'll come to your band rehearsal and help you tighten things up. He'll critique your live show and increase your band's stage presence. Heck, he'll even write your song lyrics if you want him to, and help you zero in on a band name.

"If you are a struggling band and you want to just sit down with someone and say, 'What do I need to do to get my music out there and get some success?' Well, I can do that," said Houle, also the Canadian Music Editor at PopMatters.com.

'Ask the expert'

Houle's price points go all the way from a simple $25 donation for the Ask the Expert package all the way up to $1,400 for a biography and press release package.

Visit his page at <https://www.indiegogo.com/projects/hiring-a-music-writer-who-wants-to-work-for-you>

Houle has spent the past seven years freelancing his words to publications like Spin Magazine, the National Post and the Ottawa Citizen — writing album and band reviews and interviewing artists, both famous and local. He's not just a blogger who digs music.

"I have got experience, I have got contacts, I have things I can offer bands," added Houle.

"Essentially what I am trying to do is have a win-win situation here so I can keep my lights on while helping them."

Houle makes it very clear that if you hire him for services, he will not review your

But if you need a news release done up, a band bio or even just a second set of ears to listen to your drum track in the studio — Houle offers to help where he can without spiralling bands into heaps of debt. He's not a producer, but he says he knows what makes an album good versus just mediocre.

Releasing electronic data may 'create havoc': Minister

Fear of falsification. Minister Tony Clement says that some electronic data could be altered if released

The Conservative cabinet minister responsible for freedom of information says some federal data cannot be released to the public in electronic format because people might alter it and spread falsehoods.

There's a fear people could "create havoc" by changing the statistical information, said Treasury Board president Tony Clement.

Federal agencies hold a vast array of data on everything from immigrants held in detention to use of force by RCMP officers. Some researchers have requested data kept in electronic format, only to receive it as a paper printout.

That makes it virtually impossible for the recipient to sort and filter the data to identify patterns and trends.

The Access to Information Act says federal agencies must provide timely access to records in the format requested.

Fred Vallance-Jones, who teaches journalism at the University of King's College in Halifax, said Clement's stance effectively violates the rights of requesters.

Clement's concern about data manipulation is "specious" because, technically speaking, any federal document — not just a database — could be falsified by someone with ill intent, Vallance-Jones said.

Clement has championed the growth of the government's online data portal, encouraging federal agencies to disclose data in easily sortable formats.

However, some data sets cannot be released in a spreadsheet or similar electronic format, Clement said.

"That's the balancing act that we have to have, that certain files, you don't want the ability to create havoc by making it changeable online," Clement said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian teacher jailed in Indonesia set to start trial

Police officers escort child sexual abuse suspect Zainal Abidin, centre, before his trial on Monday at South Jakarta District Court in Jakarta, Indonesia. An Indonesian court has sentenced five janitors to up to eight years in prison over the rape of a kindergarten student at a prestigious international school. The janitors' sentences were delivered the day before Canadian teacher Neil Bantleman's trial was set to begin in Jakarta. Bantleman, who is also accused of sexually abusing students at the school, said he finds the janitors' sentence "devastating," according to his family. He has been in custody since July and has maintained his innocence. PHOTO: TATAN SYUFLANA/THE CANADIAN PRESS; TEXT: THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dalhousie closing public dental clinic

Dalhousie University's faculty of dentistry is temporarily closing its public dental clinic as part of its response to accusations that male students posted misogynistic messages online about their female peers.

The university says the step is one of several measures being taken so that patients, students, faculty and staff are able to return to classes and clinics in a safe and supportive environment.

University president Richard Florizone has said 13 men in the fourth-year of the dentistry program were members of a Facebook group where comments were posted. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Immigration. Toronto group aiming to speed up application process

GILBERT NGABO
Metro in Toronto

A Toronto group is leading an effort to speed up immigration applications and put a moratorium on deportations for people with ties to three Western African countries battling Ebola.

About 200 people from across Canada signed a petition calling on swift action on applications for people from Guinea, Sierra Leone and Liberia.

The petition was sent last month to Minister of Immigration Chris Alexander. It specifically mentions permanent resident applications for spouses and common-law partners along with the renewal of things like work permits.

"It's a lot of suffering for people whose spouses are left in this whole Ebola crisis as they wait for the papers to come through," said Amadou Barry.

Barry helped led the effort with other Guineans living in Toronto. They're part of a group called the Citizen Action Commission.

The petition also asks that Canada waive fees for immigration services and start processing visa applications, which were frozen because of Ebola concerns. Barry, who still has family in Guinea, said the economy in West African countries affected by the outbreak has been at a standstill.

"If some of our people here are not allowed to work and bring help back home, the situation will be even more catastrophic," he said.

The number of Ebola cases confirmed so far is nearing 20,000 with a death toll upwards of 7,000, according to the World Health Organization.

Immigration Canada still advises travellers to avoid non-essential travels to Liberia, Sierra Leone and Guinea.

Calls to the immigration ministry were not immediately returned.

Egyptian-Canadian highlights inner workings of Al Jazeera

Precarious situation. Al Jazeera English acting bureau chief was concerned about the organization's legal standing

An Egyptian-Canadian journalist who has spent the last year in a Cairo prison sounded the alarm about his network's approach to Egypt's precarious security situation prior to his and his colleagues' arrest.

Mohamed Fahmy had taken over as acting bureau chief in Cairo for Qatar-based satellite news broadcaster Al Jazeera English in September 2013 when he raised the issue with his bosses.

At the time, Al Jazeera's Arabic channel — Al Jazeera Mubasher Mizr — had been barred from broadcasting in Egypt after authorities claimed it was biased towards supporters of the country's ousted former president and accused it of harming national security.

The Al Jazeera English service was still operating from within the country, although out of a hotel and not its offices, but its legal status was unclear, Fahmy noted.

"I have met with the whole team yesterday on my first day and I am impressed with their attitude and energy considering the pressure they have been dealing with lately on the ground," he wrote in an email to executives at Al Jazeera in Doha, Qatar's capital.

"However, the staff is very concerned where Al Jazeera stands legally and I would like to be able to comfort them at some point regarding their security and well-being."

Fahmy and his colleagues have denied all charges against them, saying they were just doing their jobs but after a trial which was denounced by critics as a sham, the trio were found guilty. Fahmy and Greste were sentenced to seven years in prison, while Mohamed was sentenced to 10 years.

Halt debate until after funerals, N.Y. mayor says

Two officers killed.
Shot inside patrol car

New York's mayor called on Monday for protests and political debate to pause until after funerals are held for the two officers who were shot and killed inside their patrol car this week-end by a man vowing retaliation for the deaths of black men at the hands of white police.

The killings came at a time when police nationwide are being criticized following Eric Garner's death in a New York officer's chokehold and 18-year-old Michael Brown's fatal shooting in Ferguson, Mo. Protests erupted in recent weeks after grand juries declined to charge the officers involved. On Monday, a prosecutor said a white Milwaukee police officer who was fired after he fatally shot a mentally ill black man in April won't face criminal charges.

"I think it's important that Officers Wenjian Liu and Rafael Ramos were ambushed Saturday by a 28-year-old who wrote an Instagram post that he would put "wings on pigs." The suspect, Ishmaaiyl Brinsley, was black; the slain New York Police Department officers were Hispanic and Asian.

North Korea. Country's online access crippled

North Korea experienced sweeping and progressively worse Internet outages extending into Monday, with one computer expert saying the country's online access is "totally down." The White House and the State Department declined to say whether the U.S. government was responsible.

President Barack Obama said Friday the U.S. government expected to respond to the hacking of Sony Pictures Entertainment Inc., which he described as an expensive act of "cyber vandalism" that he blamed on North Korea. Obama did not say how the U.S. might respond, and it was not immediately clear if the Internet connectivity problems represented the retribution.

Agenda. UN to address N. Korea's human rights

The UN Security Council placed North Korea's human rights situation on its agenda Monday, a groundbreaking step toward holding the nuclear-armed but poor country and leader Kim Jong Un accountable for alleged crimes against humanity.

This appears to be the first time that any country's human rights situation has been scheduled for ongoing debate by the UN's most powerful body. China and Russia protested the move, the boldest effort yet to confront Pyongyang over the issue.

An angry North Korea, now on the defensive against a U.S. accusation of hacking, has said it would refuse to recognize Monday's meeting.

Staff serenade oldest of zoo gorillas

The first gorilla born in a zoo is turning 58 with a celebration broadcast live to online viewers from her Ohio home.

The Columbus Zoo and Aquarium says the female western lowland gorilla, named Colo, is celebrating her birthday Monday with an Ohio-shaped cake made of peanut butter, applesauce, honey, shredded carrots with Greek yogurt frosting.

The zoo said its website would have video of Colo receiving the cake, opening presents of tomatoes and clementines and being serenaded by zoo staff and visitors.

Colo was born at the zoo in 1956. Officials there say she is the oldest gorilla in any zoo. Colo is a mother of three. Her family tree includes more than two dozen descendants living at zoos across the United States.

Pope blasts inner circle

15 'ailments of the Curia' Francis turns exchange of Christmas greetings into dressing down of Holy See's central administration

Vatican watchers said they had never heard such a powerful, violent speech from a pope and suggested that it was informed by the results of a secret investigation ordered up by Emeritus Pope Benedict XVI in the aftermath of the 2012 leaks of his papers.

Benedict tasked three trusted cardinals to probe deep into the Vatican's backstabbing culture to root out what would have prompted a papal butler to steal incriminating documents and leak them to a journalist. Their report is known only to the two popes.

Francis had some zingers: How the "terrorism of gossip" can "kill the reputation of our colleagues and brothers in cold blood." How cliques can "enslave their members and become a cancer that threatens the harmony of the body" and eventually kill it off by "friendly fire." How some suffer from "spiritual Alzheimer's," forgetting what drew them to the priesthood in the first place.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

To the Catholic Church's "seven deadly sins," Pope Francis has added the "15 ailments of the Curia."

Francis issued a blistering indictment of the Vatican bureaucracy Monday, accusing the cardinals, bishops and priests who serve him of using their Vatican careers to grab power and wealth, of living "hypocritical" double lives and forgetting that they're supposed to be joyful men of God.

Ticking off 15 "ailments of the Curia" one by one, Francis urged the prelates sitting stone-faced before him in the marbled Sala Clementina to use the Christmas season to repent and atone and make the church a healthier, holier place in 2015.

Hundreds win The Fat One

Owners of a lottery office in La Eliana, near Valencia in eastern Spain, celebrate Monday after a ticket they sold for 20 euros (about $28) won one of more than 100 first prizes worth 400,000 euros (about $570,000) in Spain's El Gordo (The Fat One) Christmas lottery. The world's biggest lottery has a total prize pot of 2.5 billion euros (about $3.6 billion). More than 100 of the top winning tickets were sold in an upper middle-class Madrid neighbourhood, 20 more purchased in the southern city of Cadiz and a handful sold in other cities across the nation. U.S. Industry spearheads drone safety campaign

Alarmed by increasing encounters between small drones and manned aircraft, drone industry officials said Monday they are teaming up with the U.S. government and model aircraft hobbyists to launch a safety campaign.

The campaign's website, www.knowbeforeyoufly.com, advises both recreational and commercial drone operators on FAA regulations and how to fly their unmanned aircraft safely.

The campaign was announced by Association for Unmanned Vehicle Systems International and the Small UAV Coalition, both industry trade groups, and the Academy of Model Aeronautics, which represents model aircraft hobbyists, in partnership with the Federal Aviation Administration.

Retailers say small drones, which are indistinguishable from today's more sophisticated model aircraft, are selling well this Christmas.

"In just a few days, kids old and young will unwrap presents, and many of them — maybe tens of thousands — will have unmanned aircraft," Michael Toscano, president of the unmanned vehicle association, said in a conference call with reporters.

"This technology is very accessible and in very high demand, but information on how to fly safely isn't readily available. That's why we've created this safety campaign."

The FAA is concerned that amateurs are using the drones in a reckless manner, increasing the likelihood of a collision that could bring down a plane or rain debris down on people.

The agency has been receiving about 25 reports per month this year of drones sighted flying near manned aircraft or airports, up from just a handful of reports two years ago. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Push to cut train staff

Trend. Executives in America want to reduce the number of people on freight trains from two to one

When American freight trains delivered cargo after the Second World War, the steam-belching beasts commonly had seven people aboard: an engineer, a conductor, up to four brakemen and a fireman.

Trains have since grown much longer, seemingly stretching to the horizon and often taking 20 minutes to pass through a crossing. And crews have been reduced in size — first to five people in the 1970s, and then to just two in 1991.

Now U.S. railroads want to put a single person in charge of today's huge locomotives, taking a step toward a future in which the nation's rail-cargo system could resemble toy train sets — highly mechanized networks run by computers or distant controllers.

For the moment, freight trains generally have two people aboard, an engineer who drives the train, and a conductor who oversees the long line of cars. Railroad executives want to reduce that to a lone engineer, saying advances in safety systems, including a new automatic braking system under development, could minimize risks.

But labour groups and people who live near rail lines are skeptical.

"These trains are 7,000 tons going 50 miles per hour. You have to have two people," said J.P. Wright, an engineer for CSX railroad in Louisville, Ky. "It's mindboggling to me that the railroads would go this far with it."

The mayor of the Chicago suburb of Barrington asks how one person could split a stopped train to allow traffic and first responders through in the event of an emergency.

"There may be technology to compensate for some of it, but I would have questions," Karen Darch said.

XMAS CARDS AGAINST HUMANITY

It's almost Christmas, and you probably forgot to mail out those cards again, which means right about now your friends are probably getting dancing elves in their inbox

readers@metronews.ca

It's that time of year again.

You know, when you think about sending Christmas cards to friends and loved ones, but as one Canada Post deadline after another sails by, they stay in the box until next year, and they won't get sent then, either.

I'm not exactly sure what keeps them in the box. There are plenty of reasons, even without inertia. And inertia's good enough.

Someone should start Inertia Anonymous.

But Christmas cards are hard work.

First, you have to buy them, with all the decisions that implies.

Should they say Merry Christmas and offend friends who aren't Christian, or Happy Holidays and underwhelm everyone, including the non-Christians?

Should they be tasteful or should you go all Thomas Kinkaid, opting for fantasy frost and cozy kitsch and damn the torpedoes?

Should each purchase benefit the world's children?

Should the cards be made of 100 per cent re-chewed pulp?

OK, we've got the cards. Now we have to find actual addresses that require something called "postal codes."

Then we have to decide if we're going to subject everyone to the annual State of Christmas address or just write a cheery greeting followed by the appropriate number of xs and os. (Signing XXXOOO on the bank manager's card is obvious and embarrassing).

Unless all three of your children graduated this year from Harvard Medical School, you'll be hard-pressed to keep up with the competition, so it's wise just to jot a thoughtful note, such as: "It's been a long time since we got together. Are you still alive?"

Once you've addressed and written the cards, next come the stamps. If you've been out of the snail-mail slow lane for a while, you're in for a shock: The price of stamps has gone up to a buck apiece.

This is a million per cent increase over last year, when it cost 63 cents. If you send out 20 cards, which you will do according to a Canada Post poll, that's $20 bucks for just being thoughtful.

Of course, the deadline for getting the cards delivered by Christmas expired in October, which means you and your friends will be exchanging face-saving Christmas cards well into April.

It's enough to make you give up and send images of creepy dancing elves to all your virtual acquaintances via email, Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Instagram and various other stress-inducing electronic bombardments.

But despite all the nonsense that goes with the cardboard artifacts, Britons send a billion a year, Americans 1.4 billion.

And while that number is down from 1.9 billion in 2009, the generation known as Millennials have shown a heart-warming tendency to include Christmas cards along with vinyl records, robust facial hair and artisanal this or that in their quest for the lost authenticity of the ancients. So I will persevere. Starting with the box I bought in 2009, I pledge to send out cards in time for Christmas 2015. HOH OHO!

Surviving your family: Booze, Ativan and other tips

REBECCA
readers@metronews.ca

Oh man, it's that time of year again: Christmas! Or Hanukkah! Or what ever word it is you use to define "awkward family gathering."

Don't get me wrong, I love Christmas and, for the most part, I love my family. But there's a reason that when I prepare myself a festive beverage people often ask, "Did you want some egg-nog in that bourbon?"

I need that drink to aid in the circumnavigation of uncomfortable questions, buried family tensions and the fact that I'm now wearing a feather boa because my Aunt Lois thought it was, "Perfect for me."

I'm not saying drinking is the answer. Ativan helps too. But if substances aren't your thing, there are other ways to help yourself through the labyrinth of emotional grenades that Christmas day can bring.

For instance, if you're a woman, you may be asked a lot of questions about your womb.

Few win the next-of-kin lottery

If you have a perfect family with no bad breath or passive-aggressive mothers, then I want you to know how lucky you are.

What's it doing? What's it thinking? It must be so dusty in there! First, you need to let these questions/comments roll off your back as if it were covered in baby oil (an oil you'd know more about if you had a baby!).

Remember, it's a common misconception that all women want/can have babies and your family member is just trying to tap into some common ground.

They don't know that you have reproductive issues, or you're single or that you'd rather eat out of a garbage can than have a kid, so don't get mad or uncomfortable, just deflect. Make a joke like, "My womb is thinking what my stomach's thinking: Where's the turkey?" Everyone will laugh and you'll distract prying eyes from the fact that you cry yourself to sleep every night with your cat.

Then there's always the "How's work?" question. This one can really be a stinker.

Maybe you don't like your job, or your job (in the eyes of others) is subpar, or maybe — and this is where family gatherings are really tricky — maybe your job is amazing and you're a millionaire and you just got a promotion, but the cousin who asked you about it is on disability because he got his finger stuck in the fryer at McDonald's.

This is a no-win situation. You don't want to rub success in the nose of the unsuccessful and yet any failure you admit to will be gobbled up by your bitter relatives like a fried schadenfreude hors d'oeuvre.

So what to do? You can try something like, "The best part about work is that we're not there right now. Am I right, Cousin Jimmy?" and then pat him on the back. If he persists, feign stomach cramps and run to the bathroom. Diarrhea shuts everyone up.

And then there's just the family. Your great aunt with the breath that smells like a dilapidated tuna factory. Your weird uncle who always tries to kiss you a little too close to the mouth.

There are the nieces and nephews who are so cute for twenty minutes and then you wish you had some Ambien For Kids. The combination of turkey and wine have left you with the inability to move, yet you're stuck on the couch beside your mother who won't stop commenting on how "Round your face is looking."

By the way, if you have a perfect family with no bad breath or passive-aggressive mothers, then I want you to know how lucky you are. Go to your holiday gatherings and hug your family extra tight, because you must have won the next-of-kin lottery. I'll bet you have perfect teeth too. How nice for you.

For the rest of us, the question is: Why do we do this? Is it for the gifts? The food? Is it for Jesus? Well, call me a sap, but I think it's for love. Because while all of this sounds awful, and all the people I'm going to see make me want to book an emergency appointment with my therapist, I love them. Does that make love sound gross and weird? Yes! And I wouldn't have it any other way.

METRO'S TAKE ON THE WORLD OF
CELEBRITIES

Mel B ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Issues with mom may have led Mel B to mix meds: Source

Whoa. So last week, former Spice Girl Mel B (real name Melanie Brown) missed a taping of the British version of X Factor after heading to the hospital because of stomach pains. But now it turns out that was a bit of a fib.

A source tell Radar Online that Brown "was hospitalized because she mixed tranquilizers, including Xanax, with alcohol. It was absolutely accidental and not intentional. She wasn't suicidal, but the pressure of being back in London brought a lot of unresolved issues to the surface concerning being estranged from her mother, Andrea, and the rest of her family."

Dang, source, ease off with the oversharing. You could've just left it at "not intentional." Brown has reportedly been holed up in a London hotel with her daughters since leaving the hospital and has been cleared by doctors to return to the U.S.

Sheen's show gets shelved as 100th episode hits the screen

Last night's Anger Management finale, it turns out, was the series finale. Charlie Sheen's post-Two and a Half Men project is all done, as cast and crew were informed late last week by FX and Lionsgate that the show would not be renewed.

"I am beyond proud of what we accomplished over the course of 100 episodes," Sheen says in a statement. "We created something uniquely special with some of the most talented individuals I have ever had the privilege to work with. My sincere thanks to all for their unwavering love and support. Here's to the next chapter."

The network brass apparently informed the team Friday, ahead of Monday's 100th episode debut, which certainly put a damper on the celebrations.

The series was kicked off in a unique manner, with Sheen orchestrating a deal with the network where he made 10 episodes and if they liked them, they had to order a minimum of 90 more, instantly triggering a syndication deal and resulting in an often draining production schedule for those involved. Up next for Sheen? Reprising his Ferris Bueller's Day Off character for a cameo on The Goldbergs.

Clooney heads Downton for Christmas

Remember all that talk about George Clooney making an appearance on Downton Abbey? Well, the moment has arrived. Clooney gets in on the action for the series' Christmas comedy bit made for the ITV network's annual charity drive, featuring the hit British show getting the It's a Wonderful Life treatment as Lord Grantham (Hugh Bonneville) frets about how he's ruined the family finances. Absolutely Fabulous star Joanna Lumley plays his guardian angel, and Clooney pops up as George Oceans Grav-ity, Marquess of Holly-wood, the PDA-happy guy Cora (Elizabeth McGovern) ended up with since Lord Grantham had never been born. Let's just say he might've been onto something.

A plot twist involving prosthetics sees Pitt pounce on the Hannibal exit

Michael Pitt is apparently all done with Hannibal and won't be returning for the show's third season, but that doesn't mark the end of his character, meat-packing magnate Mason Verger. Pitt will be replaced by Across the Universe star Joe Anderson, and hopefully fans won't notice the difference. I mean, he ended Season 2 doing some pretty grisly things to his own face, meaning lots of stomach-turning prosthetics, so it just might work. Sources say Pitt made the decision to leave the show, probably seeing his character's intense facial mutilation as the perfect opportunity to do so. Oh, and

Michael Pitt

Anderson posted a pretty alarming photo of himself in full Verger makeup on the character's Instagram account, so now we kind of see Pitt's point.

Cox loved Beyoncé's Christmas card like XO

Orange is the New Black star Laverne Cox totally wins the relatability award this year for her perfectly measured and understandable reaction to receiving a Christmas card from Beyoncé. I mean, it's a Christmas card from Beyoncé. Cox posted a shot of the signature to Instagram, explaining, "So when I opened this holiday card a few days ago and read 'Love Beyoncé,' I literally fell to the floor. I was on the floor of my apartment.

Laverne Cox

I have witnesses." Don't worry, we believe you.

She also writes, "Thanks Bey for the gift" and includes an image of a sweatshirt emblazoned with Cake by the Pound. It's unclear whether the item is said gift — I mean, it would make sense, right? — but the important thing is I would like to know more about this cake by the pound policy. Where do I sign up?

The women ruled in 2014

The year 2014 solidified something that's been clear for a few years now: When it comes to pop music, the ladies are killing it. Sure, the men put in a good showing, but when you turn on the radio (or browse through a music streaming service), you're going to hear a lot of females. Here are the women who rocked the pop music world this year

LISA WEIDENFELD AND EMILY LAURENCE
scene@metronews.ca

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Beyoncé

Technically, her album came out in December 2013, but it was one of the biggest hits of 2014, giving us all a chance to say "surfbort" to each other and worship at the throne of Queen B. Plus, her new cover of her own Crazy in Love turned the 50 Shades of Grey trailer into something genuinely steamy.

Ariana Grande

It was impossible to escape this pint-sized popstar this year. Her album My Everything generated three top tracks: Problem (featuring Iggy Azalea), Break Free (featuring Zedd) and Love Me Harder (featuring The Weeknd). Grande by far proved that her Nickelodeon days are forever behind her.

Taylor Swift

Taylor Swift's reign continued this year with the mega success of her first strictly pop album, 1989. It debuted at number one on the Billboard charts and her Shake It Off video is one of the most-watched of the year, with more than 356 million views. Her album, plus a massive stadium tour and endorsements helped the 22-year-old earn a cool $57 million this year.

Miranda Lambert

Being honoured as CMT's artist of the year wasn't the only accolade Miranda Lambert racked up this year. She is also nominated for four Grammys. If she wins, it will be her first time taking one home since 2010. But don't call it a country comeback — her fans have long been supportive of Mrs. Blake Shelton.

Lorde

Eighteen-year-old Lorde went from singer to producer this year, by curating The Hunger Games: Mockingjay — Part 1 soundtrack. Including artists such as CHVRCHES and The Chemical Brothers, as well as releasing her own song Flicker Beat, got her respect from critics and teen fans alike.

Five guys who also had pretty good years

The year wasn't all Beyoncé and Iggy Azalea songs. Women may have dominated the music scene, but a few good men had their share of success, too. Here are the top five:

Childish Gambino

What started as a cult following transformed into mass appeal this year for rapper (and Community actor) Childish Gambino, who got a Grammy nod for his song, 3005.

Nick Jonas

This was the year Nick Jonas officially became a man — at least in the public's eye. Unlike brother Joe Jonas (whose solo career flopped) Nick is garnering success with his hit Jealous, which reached No. 8 on Billboard and generated 14 million views on YouTube.

Pharrell

If Happy seems like the most-played song of the year, it was. It held the top spot on the charts longer than any other song this year. No wonder he's up for four Grammys.

Sam Smith GETTY IMAGES

Sam Smith

Sam Smith was another of 2014's newly minted stars, with his heartbreaker Stay with Me filling the Adele-shaped hole in our hearts (for now). Just how successful is he? He popped up in pictures from Taylor Swift's 25th birthday party alongside Jay Z, Beyoncé, and the rest of Swift's posse.

Ed Sheeran

The British crooner can do no wrong these days. 2014 saw him release both Sing and Thinking Out Loud, as well as contribute to the Fault in Our Stars soundtrack and win an MTV Video Music Award for the video for Sing. METRO

Charli XCX

The Dec. 14 SNL musical guest has been around for a few years, penning 2012's megahit I Love It for Icona Pop. But this year saw her breakthrough on her own, with Boom Clap on the Fault in Our Stars soundtrack — a must-have for bookish teens everywhere.

Iggy Azalea

The Florida-by-way-of-Australia rapper had one of the biggest breakthrough years in memory, teaming up with Charli XCX for Fancy and Ariana Grande for Problem. She also claimed a piece of history: She's the only act other than the Beatles to have her first two Billboard hits rank 1 and 2.

Nicki Minaj

If you've gotten Anaconda out of your head even once since you first heard it, we'd be surprised. Minaj scored another huge hit with this track, as well as garnering tons of hits for the sexy/funny music video co-starring Drake. The video set a Vevo record for the most views in its first 24 hours online, with 19.6 million hits.

St. Vincent

Singer St. Vincent has come a long way from her time as a member of the Polyphonic Spree. After her much-loved team-up with David Byrne in 2012, she came back with 2014's eponymously titled St. Vincent, perhaps her biggest success yet. The album ended up with a Grammy nomination for Best Alternative Music Album.

Tove Lo

Sometimes, singing about sex clubs and getting high can pay off. It did for Swedish singer Tove Lo, who broke it big in the States this year with her song, Habits (Stay High), which reached No. 3 on the Billboard charts.

Let's all eat, drink and be healthy

Tips. How to enjoy all the yuletide offerings without paying for it in the New Year

There will be a lot of overeating over the holidays.

There are all those high-cal foods that family traditions link to holiday celebrations. Eggnog (cream plus eggs plus sugar plus alcohol). Mashed potatoes whipped with cream cheese and plenty of butter. Gravy. So much gravy.

Given that the holidays are a season of excess and traditional holiday foods are highly calorific, we asked dietary experts how to contain the damage. Specifically: If there is one thing to cut out to make the feasting less excessive, what should it be?

Surprisingly, several of our experts did not advise eliminating a particular food. And a number didn't even frown on the idea of seasonal indulgence. But they did offer some suggestions to contain the calories.

"I'd say that if overeating is ever allowed, that it is allowed for the major festivities that occur a few times a year — provided food intake is controlled the rest of the time," says Thomas Wolever, a professor in University of Toronto's department of nutritional sciences.

Wolever says overeating by 2,500 calories — in other words, doubling an average daily intake — on three days a year can be offset by cutting back 20 calories per day for the other 362 days.

Len Piche suggests focusing on portions and finding low-calorie options.

Savour foods slowly, using smaller servings on smaller plates to help limit the cal-

When you sit down for Christmas dinner, there's a few easy ways to keep it healthy. ISTOCK ories, says Piche, a nutrition professor at Western University's Brescia University College.

Drink water before a meal. Don't skip breakfast or lunch to focus on a big dinner.

"Trying to 'save yourself' for big meals by skipping meals earlier in the day might backfire. You may develop a ravenous appetite and end up eating more calories than you normally would," Piche says.

Rena Mendelson, a professor of nutrition at Ryerson University in Toronto, also offers some tips that might help you control your calorie intake better at a big holiday meal.

"Before you go to a holiday party, have a bowl of soup and avoid any of the pre-meal treats as they tend to be very high in calories," she says.

Go ahead and indulge

"A weight management program will not be set back by indulging a few times a year — provided discipline is maintained most of the time."

Thomas Wolever, a professor in University of Toronto's department of nutritional sciences

"Eat the main meal and have enough to feel satisfied but not overfed. This may help to limit the dessert course..."

Watch your liquid calories, suggests Dr. Yoni Freedhoff, a professor of obesity medicine at the University of Ottawa.

"If I were to pick one thing to ditch, it would be the sweet stuff as many a home has the tradition of sugary soda for festive meals," he says.

One dietary expert did recommend a food item to cut. And Dr. David Jenkins acknowledges his nomination may qualify him for the role of the Grinch. Jenkins suggests cutting whatever the main meat dish is in your holiday dinner.

It's not that Jenkins thinks it's the least healthy. It's that pulling out the linchpin, so to speak, would fundamentally change our approach to the meal. He thinks with the planet's expanding population, climate change and the obesity epidemic, it's time to start thinking about eating in a more sustainable way.

"It would be a radical change in the 'sit-down-and-gorge' concept that's the centre of Christmas," says Jenkins, a researcher at Toronto's St. Michael's Hospital who studies the effects on cholesterol and health of eating more plant-based foods and fewer processed food products.

"It forces people to think about other options," he says of his recommendation. "They may think, hopefully, of more environmentally friendly options. They may think of more plant-based diets."

"They may, in fact, forgo a large meal and do some snowboarding. ... I think that we've got to start thinking about other things at Christmas than sitting down and getting comfort food."

COMPREHENSIVE PROGRAM TAUGHT BY LAWYERS

How ibuprofen may extend your life

The lifespan of the species in the study (yeast, worms and flies), which used ibuprofen, increased by 15 per cent. AFP

Study. Researchers looked at the effects of the drug on the lifespan of a range of species and say it may also work for humans

An over-the-counter pain-relieving and fever-reducing drug could lead to a longer and healthier life for many species and possibly humans, too, according to a new study at Texas A&M University (TAMU).

"We first used baker's yeast, which is an established aging model, and noticed that the yeast treated with ibuprofen lived longer," says lead author Dr. Michael Polymenis, a biochemist at TAMU's AgriLife Research station. "Then we tried the same process with worms and flies and saw the same extended lifespan. Plus, these organisms not only lived longer, but also appeared healthy."

The yeast, worms and flies were treated with ibuprofen at doses proportionally comparable to the recommended dose for humans and increased their lifespan by 15 per cent.

If human lifespans increased by that amount, it would add an extra dozen years of healthy living, according to Dr. Polymenis, who says his experiments on worms indicate good health would be part of the package.

Measurements of worms' thrashing and the pumping movements they made while swallowing under treatment indicated they were thriving in their extra years and not suffering.

Over the course of the three-year study, Dr. Polymenis observed that ibuprofen hinders the ability of yeast cells to pick up an essential amino acid found in every cell of every organism called tryptophan.

Less tryptophan being dissolved into yeast appears to make a difference, but Dr. Polymenis said he isn't sure why yet.

Drugs other than ibuprofen are working, too,

The study

"We first used baker's yeast, which is an established aging model, and noticed that the yeast treated with ibuprofen lived longer."

Dr. Michael Polymenis, a biochemist at Texas A&M University

according to Dr. Brian Kennedy, the president and CEO of the Buck Institute for Research on Aging in Novato, California, who collaborated with Dr. Polymenis.

"Our institute is interested in finding out why people get sick when they get old," says Dr. Kennedy.

"We think that by understanding those processes, we can intervene and find ways to extend human health span, keeping people healthier longer and slowing down aging. That's our ultimate goal."

The study was published in the journal Public Library of Science, Genetics. AFP

Relationships. Women have greater partner empathy than men: study

It might not seem like news, but women exhibit considerably more empathy toward their partners than men do, according to a large-scale study at Griffith University and the University of Queensland in Australia.

When their partners succumbed to illness or experienced a traumatizing life event, women were noticeably affected, but the inverse was not true, according to Dr. Cindy Mervin from Griffith and Prof. Paul Frijters from the University of Queensland.

"It is not that men are unemotional or uncaring, since they are quite strongly affected by what happens to themselves, but they simply are not very emotional when it comes to the feelings of their partner," says Mervin.

AFP

Women are more affected than men when their partners are suffering. AFP

Parenthood

Pregnancy affects dad's hormones

Fathers-to-be can experience a drop in two hormones, testosterone and estradiol, as their wives' pregnancies progress, according to a first-of-its-kind study at the University of Michigan.

Past research has indicated that fathers' testosterone drops after the birth of a baby and a study at Northwestern University confirmed this to be the case in 2011, a finding the researchers say is consistent with other species in which males help care for offspring.

Why the hormones change is not yet fully understood, according to lead author Robin Edelstein, whose study was published in the American Journal of Human Biology.

"These changes could be a function of psychological changes that men experience as they prepare to become fathers, changes in their romantic relationships, or even physical changes that men experience along with their pregnant partners," says Edelstein. AFP

Roast Turkey with Caramelized Onion and Thyme Jus. If you're looking for a new flavour for the big bird, try this combo

Check the label of your bird for weight to calculate roasting time properly. Cooking the bird unstuffed gives you control over the moistness of the breast. To be safe when cooking a stuffed bird, get the centre of the stuffing to 165 F (74 C), or you might end up with overcooked white meat.

1. Preheat oven (10 to 20 minutes) to 325 F (160 C).

2. In large frying pan, heat oil over medium-high; cook onions, whole garlic cloves, thyme and sage sprigs, and half each of the salt and pepper for 6 to 8 minutes, stirring frequently, or until onions are golden and softened. Transfer to plate; cool.

3. In bowl using a wooden spoon, cream together butter, chopped sage and thyme, chopped garlic, and remaining salt and pepper. Transfer 2 tbsp (25 ml) of mixture to a small bowl; set aside. Stir Dijon into remaining mixture.

4. Remove turkey neck and place in bottom of roasting pan. Pat turkey very dry inside and out with paper towel. Brush entire surface of turkey with Dijon herb butter, placing some under skin of breast as well. Place one-third of onion mixture into cavity of bird. Truss bird to tuck in legs and wings. Place turkey directly in roasting pan, breast side up, and arrange remaining onion mixture in pan around bird. Cover loosely with foil.

5. Place roasting pan in bottom third of oven. Roast for 20 minutes. Add 2 cups (500 ml) water to the pan. Roast for 18 minutes per lb (500 g) or until meat thermometer inserted at thickest part of thigh reads 185 F (85 C). Remove foil for last half-hour of cooking to allow skin to brown and crisp. Remove from oven. Carefully transfer turkey to a wire rack set over a rimmed baking sheet.

Tent with foil. Let stand for 20 minutes before carving.

6. Meanwhile, remove neck from pan and set aside. Carefully strain pan juices into a large glass measuring cup; let stand a minute to allow the fat to rise to the top. Discard solids in sieve. Spoon as much of the fat away from strained drippings as possible.

7. Set roasting pan over medium heat. Pour in wine; whisk briskly to get up browned bits on bottom of pan. Once reduced by half, return strained juices and neck to roasting pan. Add juices from under turkey and bring to a simmer. Stir flour into the reserved herb butter; a bit at a time, whisk into simmering turkey jus. Once all butter is whisked into jus, simmer for 3 to 4 minutes or until thickened. Discard neck. Strain again if needed. Pour into a gravy boat and serve alongside carved turkey.

PRESIDENT'S CHOICE

Give your leftovers new life

In this Turkey and Napa Cabbage Salad with Lime-ginger Vinaigrette, I take the taste buds someplace decidedly un-Christmasy.

I lean toward the anti-feast by making a salad with crunchy veggies.

Also, I completely change the flavour profile by bringing in ginger and lime, which feels more Asian-inspired.

1. In a large serving bowl, layer the cabbage, scallions, carrot, turkey, cilantro, tortilla chips and peanuts. Set aside.

2. To make the dressing, in a small bowl whisk together the mustard, soy sauce, rice vinegar, lime juice and hot sauce until smooth. Add a tablespoon or 2 of water if too thick. Slowly whisk in the oil until well-blended and the dressing is uniform. Add the ginger and whisk until incorporated. When ready to serve, drizzle the dressing over the salad, then toss well.

NHL mumps outbreak

Penguins sit out two more

The Pittsburgh Penguins just can't seem to shake off the mumps.

Backup goaltender Thomas Greiss and forwards Brandon Sutter and Steve Downie were sent home on Monday to undergo testing for the virus.

Teammates Sidney Crosby, Beau Bennett and Olli Maatta have already dealt with the illness, which has affected more than a dozen players across the league over the past month.

Terry scores in 2-0 win over Stoke

John Terry scored his first league goal of the season to help Chelsea beat Stoke 2-0 Monday and restore its three-point lead atop the Premier League.

Terry put his side ahead in just the second minute with a powerful header from a corner, and Cesc Fabregas doubled the lead in the 78th to make sure Chelsea re-established the gap on second-place Manchester City. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seahawks back on repeat track

A win from playoffs.

Five winning weeks enough to make Seattle the hottest team in the NFL

When Marshawn Lynch got to his feet following the longest touchdown run of his career, there was still one more defender to shrug off.

Safety Earl Thomas went racing off the sideline to leap on Lynch and add to the Seattle Seahawks' end-zone celebration.

The Seahawks are the hottest team in the NFL with a five-game win streak and the chance at a second straight NFC West title and home-field advantage throughout the playoffs. Seattle (11-4) has also rediscovered having fun while re-establishing itself as favourite in the NFC.

This was never more evident than Sunday night's 35-6 roust of Arizona. No moment was more telling than Lynch's 79-yard touchdown run early in the fourth quarter.

"I had as much fun last night as I've had coaching... All of the stuff that was happening was just a blast," Seattle coach Pete Carroll said on his weekly radio show Monday morning.

Five weeks ago, Seattle's chances of making the post-season were in question, perhaps on the cusp of being the latest Super Bowl winner to watch the playoffs the following season at home. Now all Seattle needs is a win at home against St. Louis — and Detroit and Green Bay to avoid playing a tie — and the Seahawks will be the No. 1 seed.

Last season, Seattle played at MetLife Stadium and shut out the New York Giants 23-0 in Week 15, then returned a month and a half later to stymie Denver in the Super Bowl. Could a repeat be on the horizon, with this year's Super Bowl played on the Cardinals' home field?

"I don't think that far," Seattle linebacker Bobby Wagner said. "I think we have a lot of challenges up before we think that far ahead, but I like our chances."

The result Sunday wasn't unexpected. For all Arizona has overcome this season with injuries and absences, the Cardinals were still starting a third-string quarterback against the No. 1 defence in the NFL.

The surprise was the eruption of Seattle's offence, setting a single-game franchise record for total yards with 596. It was the second-most yards by any team this season, trailing only the 639 posted by Pittsburgh in its win over Indianapolis.

Sens rookie Lazar named captain of Canadian juniors

‘Very honoured’. B.C. centre regarded as an upbeat competitor

Curtis Lazar has every reason to be smiling.

The always good-humoured Ottawa Senators rookie on Monday was named captain of Canada’s junior hockey team for the upcoming world championship in Toronto and Montreal.

“I’m very honoured to have this opportunity, and I’m going to take full advantage of it and go out there and play hard for my country,” Lazar told reporters at a hockey charity event in Montreal. “I know there’s a lot of responsibility that comes along with this, but I’m just going to try to take it in stride and be myself.”

Canada’s coaching staff gave Lazar the news Monday morning, shortly after the team arrived in Montreal from Ottawa, where Canada beat Sweden 5-2 in an exhibition game on Sunday. True to character, the Salmon Arm, B.C., native was grinning from ear to ear when he was told.

“As usual, I was smiling,” said the 19-year-old, who was drafted 17th overall by the Senators in 2013. “It’s pretty cool. I didn’t know it was coming. Anyone could have it. I’m very honoured that my peers and my coaching staff think very highly of me.”

“I’m a pretty positive guy for the most part. I’m always smiling and trying to keep the guys light. I like to lead by example. I really focus on little details, and I think that goes a long way.”

“I want unity within the dressing room. Regardless of where you’re from in Canada, we’re part of a team now. No one is bigger than the team.”

Lazar, who has a goal and six assists in 27 games with Ottawa this season, was lent to Canada by the Senators last week. He is one of seven returning players from last year’s tournament in Malmo, Sweden, where Canada finished fourth.

One year later, Lazar is thinking of redemption.

“I was disappointed with how we played last year and the result we got,” he said, looking back on Canada’s semifinal loss against Finland, and the defeat to Russia in the bronze-medal game. “Second chances don’t come around too often. We’re fortunate to have this chance.”

Connor McDavid of the Erie

Otters and Sam Reinhart of the Kootenay Ice will serve as alternate captains for the tournament, which officially gets underway on Dec. 26.

Next big thing gets top marks for his character

According to some hockey insiders, Connor McDavid’s skills are matched only by his character. DAVID VAN DYKE/METRO IN TORONTO

Will Connor McDavid be better than Sidney Crosby? Could he possibly be better than Wayne Gretzky?

While the hockey world is having that debate now with the world junior hockey championship coming up, these questions weren’t what preoccupied Mark Seidel two years ago in Drummondville, Que. The veteran scout was entranced by the coming and goings of a 15-year-old McDavid playing at the world under-17s.

Anyone and his grandmother could see how special McDavid’s on-ice talents were, but it wasn’t what he did on the ice that had Seidel transfixed. It was off the ice where McDavid’s stature grew in the scout’s eyes — how the phenom interacted with young fans, some in wheelchairs.

“Body language is a big thing with me,” says Seidel, a talent evaluator for nearly two decades. “I like to see how people interact to see if they’re legit or whether they’re coached up, or what they are like when the cameras are off.”

What he saw from McDavid, who was talking and playing with developmentally delayed kids, impressed him.

“You could see he genuinely enjoyed interacting with young kids,” Seidel adds. “He was just a guy. He wasn’t looking for cameras. You got the sense that he really enjoyed being there. He wasn’t doing it because he thought he should or it was his duty. It was just

Earning respect

As for that November fight that left McDavid with a broken hand, well, the anti-fighting crowd didn’t like it, but within hockey circles it earned the Otters star high marks.

- “He’s a guy that will solve his own problems,” talent evaluator Mark Seidel says. “He’s not looking at the bench for help. He’s not a self-entitled kid.”

the right thing to do.”

That, more than his play, is the story of McDavid.

Sure, the 17-year-old forward will be the centrepiece of Canada’s offence at the world juniors, starting Boxing Day in Montreal and Toronto. Sure, he’ll likely be the No. 1 pick for some lucky NHL team, a face of the franchise and cornerstone to build on. But it’s the combination of hockey skill and character — unselfish, humble — that draws comparisons to Crosby and even Gretzky.

“I’ve had a lot of players with a lot of ability that I wish had more character,” says Sherry Bassin, GM and owner of McDavid’s OHL club, the Erie Otters, “and I’ve had a lot of players with a lot of character that I wish had more ability. You put them both together, you get Connor McDavid.”

CAM

STEVE RUSSELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Max Domi, forward, Canada

Max Domi, like his father Tie, isn't the biggest guy on the ice. But he has possessed an ability to produce offensively throughout his entire junior hockey career with the London Knights. He's also formed instant chemistry playing on a line with Anthony Duclair, who has appeared in 18 games for the NHL's New York Rangers this season. Early in the pre-tournament games, those two players have arguably been Canada's best up front.

Kasperi Kapanen, forward, Finland

Drafted 22nd overall by the Pittsburgh Penguins in June, Kasperi Kapanen, the son of former NHL forward Sami Kapanen, has represented Finland before on the international stage, but never in the world junior championship. He missed that opportunity in 2014 due to injury. The Finns are the defending gold-medal champs, but are expected to be led offensively by Kapanen, who is having a breakout year in SM liiga.

BRUCE
GETTY

Mirco Mueller, defenceman, Switzerland

The Swiss may not garner much attention in this tournament. But they do have a defenceman with NHL experience in Mirco Mueller, who has played in 24 games with the San Jose Sharks. Like his team, Mueller, taken 18th overall in 2013, might not be as well-known because of the country he plays for, and there's plenty more talent in this tournament. He's had international experience before, with three points in five games at a U-18 competition.

CHRISTIAN PETERSEN/GETTY IMAGES

NATHAN DENETTE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ilya Sorokin, goalie, Russia

Not sure if he counts as an unknown figure in this tournament after the pre-tournament performance he had against Team Canada, but Russian goalie Ilya Sorokin joined the Russian camp from the KHL. Drafted in the third round by the New York Islanders, he was not among the goaltenders for Russia at last year's tournament. Though if he plays like he did in a 52-save effort against Canada last week, it will be difficult to beat the Russians.

Thatcher Demko, goalie, United States

Thatcher Demko didn't get the chance to play in a game for the U.S. junior team in last year's competition, but he could certainly challenge for the starting role in 2015. Drafted in the second round by the Vancouver Canucks, he stopped all 14 shots faced in the opening half of the first pre-tournament game for the Americans. Many eyes will be on U.S. forward Jack Eichel, who could challenge Connor McDavid to go first overall next June. But strong goaltending could make the U.S. a golden contender.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

Saturn's influence over the next few days will encourage you to think before you act. If you are going to be ruthless, be ruthless with yourself.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Try not to scatter your energy in too many directions because it's unlikely you will be able to maintain the pace. Focus on the one thing that matters most to you.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

The changes that take place over the next few days will work in your favour in the long term. If you take a risk it may well pay off but don't expect instant profit or pleasure.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

If someone tries to interfere in your personal affairs you must let them know you're not having it. Sometimes you have to act tough from the start and this is one of those times.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

A breakthrough is about to occur. Your rivals may say you have been lucky but you just worked harder than they did.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

There is so much you want to accomplish but if you are smart you will set realistic goals, both for this week and for the new year. Take each day as it comes.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Don't worry if others poke holes in your plans. You don't need anyone's permission to follow your dreams. Go it alone if you have to.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Travel and social activities will be fun over the holidays but the ride won't always be smooth. Plan ahead and give yourself plenty of time.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Saturn's move into your sign marks the start of a two-year phase that will test you. The good news is you can handle whatever life throws at you.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

The tougher the task the more you like it but with Saturn moving into the most sensitive area of your chart those tasks won't always be physical. Get your head together and everything else will fall into place.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Don't let others pressure you into accepting an offer you have no way of knowing is right for you. It could mean a lot more work for little return.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

If you find it hard to discuss things in a civilized manner with certain people then the best thing to do is to stay out of their way.

Resolve to ring in the new year right at one of the many shindigs going down on Dec. 31

Can't make it to Cuba for New Year's Eve? Well, the Canadian War Museum has the next best thing in store for partygoers looking for a Latin-style end-of-the-year bash in Ottawa. Guests can dine on Cuban hors d'oeuvres and sip cocktails while listening to live music from DJ Ray Ray. There will also be a silent auction in support of Make-A-Wish Foundation, a dessert bar at midnight, and a chance for guests to win a trip to Cuba. The event is 19+ and tickets are $85.

If a Scottish-style bash is more your thing, the Scottish Society of Ottawa will host the TD Hogmanay at TD Place, including entertainment from Scots-Canadian rock legends, Glass Tiger. The party will be inside Aberdeen Pavilion where there will be an indoor ceilidh, Scottish dancing and music, the Glengarry Pipe Band, skating on the ice rink adjacent to the pavilion and fireworks at midnight, and of course, Scotch tasting. The event starts at 6 p.m. and at 7 p.m. there will be a countdown to mark the new year in Scotland.

For the outdoorsy types, Sparks Street is hosting another edition of their free New Year's Eve party and have invited Canadian Country Music Award-winning artist, Tim Hicks, Autumns Cannon!, and DJ 8barz to please the crowd. Student union leader Anne-Marie Roy did not expect to become a spokeswoman on the issue of rape culture or an advocate against what she calls pervasive sexism on campus. But after she discovered she was the subject of an explicit Facebook conversation last February, she felt she needed to speak out despite legal threats.

"I always identified as a feminist, but my forte was talking about tuition fees and why the University of Ottawa shouldn't increase tuition fees — it wasn't talking about rape culture, sexism and misogyny the way I talked about it last March," said the president of the Student Federation of the University of Ottawa.

Soon after that conversation was emailed to her anonymously, allegations of sexual assault against players for the Gee-Gees men's hockey team also surfaced. It was a tense month on campus. Suddenly Roy found her typical five-minute media interviews turning into hour-long discussions on rape culture.

"I don't think I realized or fully understood how big of a deal it was for a lot of people," said the 25-year-old. "But I also think, on an individual level, I learned a lot about myself and about my own feminism and my own politics."

There has been progress following these discussions on rape culture, but Roy said it's an "ongoing battle." Sexism is still apparent on campus — from unwanted touching at the student bar to victim blaming and overheard rape jokes — she said.

Since the incidents last March, Roy has been working on new mandatory rape culture training for elected student leaders. She also wants to see a mandatory gender studies course for all students. It's an idea she pitched to the school's new task force on respect and with education. She helped start the conversation and she wants to keep it going.

While seated on the beige couch in her office at the University of Ottawa, Roy can take a bit of a breather now that she's past that tense March and just finished the final exam of her communication and French literature degree. After next semester, she will become the national deputy chairperson for the Canadian Federation of Students, with her long-term sights set on grass-roots activism.

But first, she will head home to Welland, Ont., and Victoriaville, Que., to visit family for the holidays.

"I'm really excited to see my grandmother, who's also a feminist," she said.

OTTAWA 2015: 3 MORE TOP INFLUENCERS

Angelique Francis

She has already wowed audiences in some of the biggest venues across North America, but 2015 is likely going to be a big year for Ottawa singing sensation Angelique Francis.

At 13 years old, Francis was named one of three top emerging Canadian female artists from Ottawa Bluesfest's She's The One competition in 2011. In the same year, Francis made her American national TV debut by video appearance on the Gayle King Show.

Now the 17-year-old, who sings and plays guitar, drums and many other instruments, is reaching for the stars.

"We have a lot of performances lined up already," said Francis. Two shows will be at the Toronto

Blues Summit this January and another show is set for the International Blues Challenge in Memphis, where she will represent Canada's youth.

Francis is also performing at the Aurora Winter Blues Festival in February and a New Year's Eve bash at Nepean City Hall. And she is planning to drop an EP some time in 2015, with a single to be released in January.

TREVOR GREENWAY/METRO

Imtiaz Ahmed

Imtiaz Ahmed, 32, took a bold step on Nov. 18 when he helped launch a nationwide campaign to prevent youth radicalization from becoming a crisis in Canada.

In the aftermath of the two attacks on Canadian soldiers in October, Ahmed, of the Ahmadiyya Muslim Jama'at Ottawa branch, said he felt compelled to act so he spearheaded the local chapter of STOPTHECRISIS and is giving talks to local universities.

"I cannot sit at home idle when my religion is being used as a tool and when my religion is being hijacked by these terrorist ideologies," he told Metro earlier this month.

"I felt compelled to go out in the public and talk about this."

Ahmed spoke to students at the University of Ottawa in November about how to recognize signs of radicalization and how the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant's (ISIL, also known as ISIS) actions are against Islamic teachings. He is scheduled to give another presentation at Carleton University on Jan. 28.

Local MPs and senators have recently met with him to discuss youth radicalization, he said. JOE LOFARO/METRO

Erik Karlsson

At 24, Erik Karlsson is following in the skate strides of the beloved Daniel Alfredsson and the traded-away, not-so-loved Jason Spezza.

The 2012 Norris trophy winner battled back last year from a devastating Achilles tendon injury that came from the skate of Pittsburgh's Matt Cooke and now finds himself in a different sort of a struggle as his team battles to clamp down on turnovers and, with the help of new head coach Dave Cameron, turn themselves into a team that can make the playoffs.

The Sens' star defenceman, for his part, doesn't seem to be a fan of prognostications or getting too far ahead of himself.

Karlsson told Metro the team isn't looking ahead to the new year yet, but is focusing on each day that comes by.

He said it's important for the team to "stay in the present."

"We don't really worry about what we have to do tomorrow," said Karlsson.

"We can't really look behind or look too far ahead. We just want to win games."

OTTAWA 2015: MUSIC

2015 will sound great in Ottawa

Music to our ears.

Stars like Taylor Swift and Neil Diamond to play our city next year

TREVOR GREENWAY
trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

It will be a good year for Ottawa music-heads in 2015 with the likes of Canadian icon Bryan Adams, country superstar turned pop sensation Taylor Swift and Tom Cochrane coming to wow audiences in the nation's capital.

Bryan Adams fans can relive the legendary Summer of '69 when the Canadian icon hits the stage at Canadian Tire Centre Feb. 20. Adams will be playing hits from the 1984 classic Reckless as he celebrates the 30th anniversary of his most successful album, which sold more than 12 million copies worldwide. Tickets are between $19 and $95.

Those who can't get enough of Taylor Swift's Shake It Off can catch the young music sensation at the Canadian Tire Centre July 6 — I wonder if former Senators coach Paul MacLean will be at the show.

And good times never seemed so good when Neil Diamond is in the house. The folk pop singer brings songs from his new album Melody Road, as well as many classic favourites — you can expect to sing along to Sweet Caroline. Tickets range between $65 and $150.

Over at the NAC, music lovers can catch Jill Barber on March 7, Tom Cochrane a week later on March 14 and Stars and Hey Rosetta! Feb. 7. The NAC is also putting on a Daniel Lanois show and a Steven Page concert.

For those into something a bit harder, Toronto punkers Death From Above 1979 hit the Bronson Centre with their dirty, thrashy indie sound Jan. 31.

Glam rockers who are stuck in the '80s shouldn't cut their long greasy hair just yet, because Def Leopard is coming to Ottawa's TD Place arena May 4 and they are bringing with them hits like Pour Some Sugar on Me, and Photograph.

And, of course, Nickelback fans (is that an oxymoron?) have likely already got their tickets to the Feb. 17 show, as the boys from Hanna, Alta., are heading to the Canadian Tire Centre with their new album Fixed Address, which probably sounds identical to their other seven studio albums. Tickets are between $25 and $95.

CANADA 2015: COURT

5 high profile cases to watch

We saw a lot of big names land in court this year, which means there will be a lot of courtroom drama to watch in 2015. These are some of the major criminal cases to keep an eye on, according to Canadian defence lawyer Daniel Brown.

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
Metro in Toronto

Sandro Lisi

Former Toronto mayor Rob Ford's friend and driver Alexander "Sandro" Lisi is expected to go on trial for charges of extortion, as well as trafficking in marijuana, possession of the proceeds of crime, possession of marijuana and conspiracy to commit an indictable offence.

Lisi is accused of extorting Liban Siyad and Mohamed Siad in attempts to get the first Ford crack video.

Jian Ghomeshi

The case against former Q radio host Jian Ghomeshi will make its way through the court system and may go to trial in 2015, said Brown. Ghomeshi is charged with four counts of sexual assault and one count of "overcome resistance, choking" involving three victims. Details of the case will be made public in 2015, but the identities of two of the women accusing him of sexual assault will remain covered by a publication ban.

James Forcillo

James Forcillo is charged with second-degree murder and attempted murder in the July 2013 Toronto streetcar shooting death of Sammy Yatim.

His trial will be a rare one — a police officer charged with murder.

Yatim, 18, was allegedly holding a knife on an empty Dundas West streetcar when he was shot eight times.

Dellen Millard

Dellen Millard faces three counts of first-degree murder, including one for the death of Tim Bosma.

Bosma went missing after leaving his Ancaster, Ont., home to take a truck he was selling on a test drive. His burned remains were later found on Millard's farm. Mark Smich is also charged in that homicide.

Millard is also charged with first-degree murder in the death of his father and the death of Laura Babcock.

Justin Bieber

Justin Bieber, accused of dangerous driving and assaulting a member of the paparazzi, could face a trial in Stratford, Ont., Brown said.

Bieber himself has not made a court appearance in the case, disappointing the Beliebers who have been on hand to catch a glimpse.

"If his case goes to trial, we can expect him there," said Brown.

CANADA 2015: QUEBEC POLITICS

Media mogul poised lead PQ Party

Quebec media mogul Pierre Karl Péladeau's journey to become the father of a country begins in earnest in 2015.

The controlling shareholder of Québecor is the acknowledged front-runner in the Parti Québécois leadership race, which will end in May.

However, the next provincial election won't be held until September 2018.

So if Péladeau does replace Pauline Marois as PQ leader, he will have three years to be successful in his seemingly simple but daunting plan: to revive a moribund sovereignty movement.

One possible negative in his becoming leader is that Quebecers will be getting a much closer look at a relative political neophyte unaccustomed to the cut and thrust of public life.

Péladeau, whose Québecor is one of the main players in the province's cable, Internet, cellphone and media markets, says his primary goal in entering politics is to make Canada's second most populous province a country. Asked on Nov. 27, when he officially declared his leadership campaign, what his main theme would be, he replied without hesitation: "Sovereignty."

Although Quebecers' support for independence continues to stubbornly stick around 35 per cent, the next few years present Péladeau an opportunity to make an economic case for the province to go on its own.

The brunt of sweeping Liberal government cuts to programs across the board should be felt in 2015, leaving Péladeau in the politically enviable position of critiquing while being free of making the tough decisions.

OTTAWA 2015: NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

A TRICKY BUSINESS

No one ever said resolutions were easy, especially for city council

STEVE COLLINS
ottawa@metronews.ca

How are the New Year's resolutions? Have you got one, or one too many? Do you still make them?

I've stuck to resolutions in years past, sometimes keeping them, sometimes not coming close. I gave up on perfection some time ago, but not on the hope for slight improvements here and there.

I also have my doubts that New Year's Day is the ideal time to suddenly start being more excellent. It's a tidy, symbolic moment at which to turn over a new leaf — new year, new you, sure, I get it — but it also tends to be a cold, dark, enervating one.

Is it really a good idea to chart a bold new course in life when just getting out the door involves a wrestling match with the boots and heavy coat in order to gird against weather that's making no bones about trying to kill you?

Resolutions, of course, are what deliberative bodies like city council are all about, and before they headed out for the holidays, our new one voted to keep tax increases capped at two per cent for the coming year.

The goal comes with a bit of an asterisk, of course, as sewer and water rates will shoot up in excess of that, and many homeowners are facing hikes in their property assessments, but it's still a firm commitment of the sort that council's done well keeping under Mayor Jim Watson.

Resolutions are the name of the game for politicians at all levels of government. METRO FILE

The American Psychological Association (APA) offers some tips for keeping resolutions:

Start small: It's best to keep the goals manageable. You're more likely to be able to start going to the gym two or three nights a week than go from zero to daily. Instead of trying to drop 100 pounds, why not try 10?

Council has floundered on this point before, notably with then-Mayor Larry O'Brien's ambitious "zero means zero" tax freeze, which resulted in some significant increases as budget pressures mounted.

The current council is building on a 2.5 per cent benchmark set in the last term, which was gradually tightened budget after budget, in what I imagine is an APA-approved process.

Talk about it: This not only means telling your family and friends what you're up to (presumably creating a little pressure on yourself to deliver), but also possibly finding others who are trying to pull off the same feat of self-improvement you are, whether a gym buddy or someone else who's trying to quit smoking.

The mayor has little trouble in the talking department.

Last term's 2.5 per cent cap and this year's two per cent were centrepieces of his election campaigns. He's not shy about bringing up the progressively smaller tax increases of last term.

Conversely, the council vote on the tax cap was rushed. Some councillors wanted to discuss their priorities for the term before committing, but Watson insisted that the cap had to be settled first to assure the timely issuance of tax bills. I have to assign mixed marks on this one — top-notch promotion, middling debate.

If you're still making your own resolutions, the rest of the APA's advice is at apa.org/helpcenter/resolution.aspx.

Whether you resolve or not, all the best in 2015.

New Year's resolutions for newsmakers as imagined by Rebecca Kohler

REBECCA KOHLER
readers@metronews.ca

People who participated in the Ice Bucket Challenge: This year, we resolve to donate to charity without being tagged by a friend on Facebook. And this year, we will actually donate money, not just a video of ourselves in that cute bikini we bought in Vegas.

Don't tell anyone, but we didn't even put ice in the water. In fact we warmed it up and put lavender bath salts in it. We pretended it was cold, but it was actually really soothing.

Jian Ghomeshi: This year, I resolve to start a really cool radio show about arts and culture. My only guest will be my mom and we'll broadcast from my childhood bedroom. If need be, I will relocate my studio to the Millhaven Institution.

Apple: Last year we released the iPhone 6, but that's old news — let's face it, it was old news five minutes after you bought it. (Sucker.)

This year, we resolve to launch the iPhone 10 — we'll release the 7, 8 and 9 quickly throughout the year but their batteries will only last for two months and we'll make sure their screens smash faster than Humpty Dumpty's skull.

The iPhone 10 will be nicknamed the iPhone Large and will be the size of an iPad Mini but so thin you won't be able to see it. It will come with an app that eats money and can be purchased on layaway with your first-born child as down payment.

Ebola: In 2015, I resolve to do more traveling. I hear Iceland is gorgeous!

Renée Zellweger: In 2015, I resolve to not change my face. I won't get Botox, or chemical peels (maybe one) and I will love myself for who I am.

It's hard because the film industry makes me feel bad about myself, so I changed my face, but then they all made fun of me so it's like, "What?!"

No, but seriously, I'll just stick to moisturizer and maybe some Retin-A but no fillers. I mean, who am I, Meg Ryan?

Malala Yousafzai: I am honoured to have won the Nobel Peace Prize in 2014. I resolve this year to continue being one of the most inspirational people on the planet.

Perhaps in 2015 I will try improving the world further by posting a no-makeup selfie. I can only hope to be so brave.

Justin Bieber: 2015: Girls, peeing, mop-buckets, eggs, depositions, yo. Peace.

SCENE 2015: BACK TO THE FUTURE

Marty!! Are we any closer to trying your hoverboard?

Back to the Future 2 year is nigh. 2015 will bring us into the movie's future minus the DeLorean so let's do some comparisons

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

It's time, everybody. We're finally reaching 2015, the future presented in the 1989 sequel Back to the Future II that was full of auto-drying jackets, freeze-dried pizza and hoverboards. So now is about as good a time as any to take stock and see how we're doing with the technological advancements predicted in the film.

Hoverboards

It looked like we almost had this a year ago, but it turned out to be a Funny or Die hoax that Tony Hawk was in on. He's back again saying for real he's really tried one out, but we're finding it hard to trust again. Besides, if Segways never really took off, what hope do hoverboards have?

Flying cars

Possibly the biggest gripe people today have about the future we were all promised. Way to continue that wave of

I think we would all like Marty's hoverboard to arrive sooner than later. HANDOUT disappointment, Back to the Future II.

Food hydrators

Still not sure exactly how this technology is supposed to rejuvenate and enlarge a hockey puck-sized frozen pizza, but that's beside the point. The film apparently predicted that Black & Decker would still be the reigning kitchen gadget company of the future. Boy, were they wrong.

Giant in-wall video conferencing

In the film, they basically combine giant home flat-screen TVs and Skype. They even had the foresight to predict the massive, industry-wide aspect ratio change to widescreen.

Nike Air Mags

Nike actually released a replica version of these totally boss high-tops in 2011, but they weren't actually self-lacing, so really what's the point? We're stilling bending down to tie our shoes like our parents and grandparents.

Flying automated news cameras

This one's not that far off, actually, given the rise of consumer-level remote-control drones and GoPro cameras. So good work, movie.

Double neckties

Thank God these never caught on. The less said about this bizarre fashion choice, the better.

Tiring online pranksters

What gives, Internet?

For several years running, online pranksters have been following a bizarre pattern of behaviour: Taking the image of Doc Brown's upgraded DeLorean dashboard from Back to the Future II, modifying it to show a different date and posting it online with the breathless caption, "Today is the day Marty McFly travelled in time to in the future!"

Only it's not. That day is Oct. 21, 2015. But that hasn't stopped countless Photoshop-happy fiends from misleading people on Twitter and Facebook, starting in 2010. It happens on a surprisingly regular basis, and the coming year will likely only see more of such antics.

The question remains, though: What's the point? There's really nothing to gain from duping people with this gag, and it gets disproved quicker and quicker each time. Yet still it persists. Our only guess is the reward is the pure, immature joy of manipulating others' gullibility and willingness to retweet things.

LIFE 2015: HOROSCOPES

SALLY BROMPTON
ottawa@metronews.ca

What the stars hold for you

Aries (March 21 to April 20)

You are rarely slow to assert yourself, either in your personal life or in your career, and the solar eclipse on March 20 and the lunar eclipse on Sept. 28 suggest you will be even more active and ambitious than usual this year. But don't forget that even an ultra-competitive Aries needs to recharge their batteries once in a while. Jupiter's move into the well-being area of your chart on Aug. 11 will encourage you to take up some sort of relaxation or meditation technique. You will need it!

Taurus (April 21 to May 21)

Is there something you have neglected to do? More to the point, is there someone you still need to resolve certain issues with? According to the planets there is, and 2015 is the year to sort it out. Saturn's return to the relationship area of your chart in June will encourage you to do it. Jupiter in your fellow Earth sign of Virgo from Aug. 11 promises great things creatively and romantically, but only if you do something about those emotional loose ends. The final four months of the year should be truly spectacular.

Gemini (May 22 to June 21)

Venus and Mars, the relationship planets, join the sun in the most adventurous area of your chart on Feb. 20, so if you are in the market for love you won't have to wait long to find it. Existing relationships will improve as well, especially if you make an effort to spice things up. Saturn in your opposite sign will bring challenges, especially in the closing months of 2015, but it will also bring opportunities to forge long-term alliances with serious people who balance your own carefree attitude.

Cancer (June 22 to July 23)

Saturn in the well-being area of your chart means you need to pay more attention to your health — physical, mental and emotional. That may not sound like a lot of fun, but don't worry because with Jupiter moving into one of the more outgoing areas of your chart in August, the second half of the year will bring plenty of social opportunities. What happens around the time of the solar eclipse on Sept. 13 will remind you that it can be just as much fun to travel as to arrive.

Leo (July 24 to Aug. 23)

A family matter you thought had been amicably resolved will return to vex you this year — especially after Saturn moves back into the domestic area of your chart in June. This time there can be no half-measures — stamp your authority on the situation and insist that everyone follow your lead. You are nobody's fool, and anyone who thinks they can manipulate your emotions is in for a rude awakening. Treat yourself to a vacation around the time of the lunar eclipse on Sept. 28 — you will have earned it.

Virgo (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

The big news this year is the entry of Jupiter into your sign in August. Jupiter improves your lot on every level, but more importantly it widens your outlook on life, enabling you to see connections and possibilities where previously you could see only stumbling blocks and confusion. Mars in sympathetic Taurus from March 31 to May 12 is also an omen of bigger and better things to come, so start making plans and don't let the past limit you. Think of 2015 as a new beginning.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Venus, your ruler, teams up with Mars in late February to create the perfect conditions for love. If there is someone you want to get close to romantically, don't wait for them to make the first move — spell it out and let them know you think the two of you would make the perfect couple. Career-wise, July is the best month to let employers and senior colleagues know you want a better deal. Make your demands when Mars links with Mercury on July 16 — it's unlikely they will refuse you.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

You have so many big ideas but you don't seem to be doing much with them. Why is that? Most likely it has to do with the influence of Neptune in the most creative area of your chart. Neptune is the planet of imagination but also indecision, so you tend to chop and change for no good reason. Happily, the influence of go-getting Mars will help you to decide what to focus on in 2015. Set your sights high, but more importantly don't change tack halfway through the year. Whatever you start, see it through to the end.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Mars in the domestic area of your chart from mid-January to mid-February will help you get your home life in order, and it's important that you do so because later in the year your focus will be on more worldly matters — you certainly won't have time for family dramas. Jupiter spotlights career issues from Aug. 11 onward and it's quite possible that you will change jobs or even go back to school and study for a completely different line of work. It's never too late to move in a new direction.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Capricorn may be cautious by nature but it is also a cardinal sign, and that means you always work toward a long-term goal. What happens between the solar eclipse on March 20 and the lunar eclipse on April 4 will bring into focus how successful you have been in turning your ambitions into concrete achievements, and you may well decide on a top-to-bottom relaunch of your life. The bigger you think and act this year, the more you will accomplish.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

When your ruler Uranus squares up to power planet Pluto in mid-March, you will be thrust into a situation that demands a decisive response. If someone has been taking advantage of your trusting nature, you must deal with them ruthlessly so everyone knows you are not a soft touch. The rest of 2015 will be plain sailing and come November, when Mars moves into the most adventurous area of your chart, you may even be sailing for distant shores.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

Your self-assurance will increase this year — especially around the time of the solar eclipse on March 20, which only just falls in your birth sign but will still do wonders for your confidence. And that's good because a lot of people will be depending on you. The year's other solar eclipse on Sept. 13 suggests you will be called on to fill a leadership role, one in which you can use your intuition and compassion to bring together people who might otherwise waste time in needless competition.

1 Jupiter Ascending.

Feb. 6

It's encouraging to know that after not nearly enough people gave Cloud Atlas a shot, Larry and Lana Wachowski aren't playing it safe. Instead, they're doubling down on the bizarre and grandiose science-fiction fare that they're known for. Give Channing Tatum's floppy ears a chance.

2 The Last Five Years.

Feb. 19

While this musical starring Anna Kendrick and Jeremy Jordan isn't necessarily the best date movie — it chronicles a couple falling in and painfully out of love — it's definitely a better Valentine's Day choice than Fifty Shades of Gray.

3 Avengers: Age of Ultron.

May 1.

Let's face it, all these Marvel movies are cool and all — and 2014's two entries were very, very cool — but it's all fun and games until Joss Whedon returns to the scene with the studio's flagship. Bonus points for James Spader voicing an evil killer robot. Even if you're suffering from Superhero Movie Fatigue, at least make room for the cream of the crop.

Chris Pratt stars in Jurassic World, opening next summer. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

4 Jurassic World.

June 12.

This might be a terrible, terrible mistake, but we're willing to be cautiously optimistic. For now, at least. Director Colin Trevorrow's previous indie work gives us some hope, as does Chris Pratt on a motorcycle flanked by velociraptors. Come on, Pratt. Don't let us down.

5 Spectre.

Nov. 6.

The closer we get to the end of the year, the less convincing we need to get excited for big releases. Case in point: The next James Bond film, with Skyfall director Sam Mendes sticking around for another go. They've barely been filming a month and it's due in theatres in November. You've got to at least admire the work ethic.

LIFE 2015: SOCIAL ETIQUETTE

Time to ditch bad behaviours

Resolutions. Internet culture has permeated our habits and changed how we treat each other — and not in a good way

For Metro

Looking for a New Year's resolution? OK, probably not. But you may have spent 2014 participating in one (or, let's be honest, more) of these bad, or just sort-of-bad, behaviours. So here's what you might want to resolve to quit doing in 2015.

Public Transit

It's time for a definitive ruling on public-transit behaviour — especially mid-winter, when we're packed in more than usual. Can we finally agree that it's inappropriate to do any kind of grooming on transit?

The nail trimming obviously has to go (the fact that people do this at all will remain a mystery of my lifetime), but I'm also not thrilled to see hair being brushed or lips being glossed or, especially, perfume being applied.

Similarly, eating food — I'm talking takeout, sandwiches, anything with a scent and a personality — is giving your fellow passengers a sensory experience they didn't ask for.

Sneaking a quick face-check via iPhone camera before arriving at your destination, or having a few bites of a granola bar, is permissible, but if you're really givin' 'er, rethink it.

Documenting a concert on your phone is pointless, and it's rude to the performer and the rest of the audience. ISTOCK

'Compliments'

Street harassment was a hotter-than-usual topic in 2014, in part thanks to that viral video of a woman being catcalled as she walked around New York.

It probably came as a surprise to some people (men and women alike) that while just saying "hello" to someone on the street might be done with good intentions, it's not always taken that way (especially when it's the 10th thing a stranger has said to you that day).

It's easy to forget that everyone is having their own individual experience, and imposing ourselves on that experience through unwanted conversation is straight-up rude.

Let's resolve to pay attention to other people's signals, and not assume that everyone is up for a question, a compliment or even a "hi."

Posting

With so many news stories unfolding in real time and being posted on social media, there's a huge opportunity to do it wrong. Huge.

Before posting your opinion — especially if you know less about that issue than other people in your social networks — take a beat, and ask yourself if you really have anything to contribute.

If not, maybe do something else, something positive, with the instinct to weigh in.

Of course, we're all entitled to post whatever we want on our own pages, but good etiquette involves always thinking about how we're creating and affecting other people's experiences.

Not adding something to an existing online cacophony is an easy, subtle way to be polite.

Phone Etiquette

In a movie theatre ...

My personal choice for No. 1 worst-ever phone-etiquette foul is using a phone, even just to look at it just for a second, in a movie theatre.

Here's the rule: It's just fine to text, check Twitter, whatever, during the previews, but that thing better be off — off — before the feature starts. The glow of the screen is super-obvious in a dark theatre, not just to people behind you, but to everyone on either side, all the way to the back. The only time it's OK to use your phone during a movie is if you're in the very back row, and no one else is. Got it? Good.

At a concert ...

It's become common practice in the age of smartphones, YouTube, Vine and Instagram to document the parts of life that weren't considered particularly notable even a decade ago, or the parts of life that are really better in the moment, like concerts or stand-up sets.

Taking one of a million grainy clips with terrible sound that end up on the Internet doesn't really have a purpose, anyway, and it's rude — to the performer, to the people you're with and to the rest of the audience — to ignore what's happening in real time.

On the street, or anywhere ...

Camera-phone culture means it's become common practice to take photos of other people, semi-randomly and without asking. Which is crazy!

Don't take a picture without first asking if it's cool, and don't post a picture of someone else on the Internet. That anyone would ever do this, without the other person's permission, is evidence of how much Internet culture has permeated our habits when it comes to how we treat each other.

When in doubt in 2015, think of what you might have done in 2005 — or 1995 — for guidance.

LIFE 2015: FOOD TRENDS

5 ways to boost your health

THERESA ALBERT
myfriendinfood.com

The REAL deal

If Loblaws is doing it, you know it's a trend that's here to stay. Consumers are choosing foods that are good for their health — looks as though we are finally getting the message that what we do today affects our bodies and quality of life tomorrow. All President's Choice products are being (or have been) reformulated to remove artificial colours and flavours ... let the food improvement competition begin!

ALL PHOTOS ISTOCK

Your calf is grass

Grass-fed is where it's at. Full-on organic can be cost-prohibitive but we know the fat ratio (Omega 3:6:9) is in better balance when your animal is grass-fed. With companies like Rolling Meadow rolling out grass-fed butter (tastes just like grandma's), yogurt and milk, and Natural Life Choices serving up grass-fed hot dogs, burgers and sausages, you can really go whole hog with the grassy trend.

Alternative protein

Let's face it, some of us find the gluten-free trend unappealing. But our high-carb, low-protein diets are killing us. Now protein is finding its way into everything, and perhaps the most comforting trend comes in the form of fresh pasta that is low-cal, high-fibre and high-protein — it's sweeping us off our feet. Look for Skinny Pasta in the refrigerated section of your grocery store and never look back.

Fermented friend

Keffir is the new Greek yogurt, for sure, but what else can you do (deliciously) to contribute to a healthy gut? Kimchi, sauerkraut and tempeh are all fermented foods that deliver other strains of probiotics and food to feed them with.

Rise of the humble sap

The whole world is hugging the maple tree as it turns its back on sugar. This sweetener is showing up in everything from yogurt to doughnuts, in spreads and coffees — meaning the humble sap is taking its place in the limelight. Wear a smudge of it on your cheek with pride.

World juniors at home is the best gift of all

Five reasons why. This holiday season, watch the daring Danes, the frustrated Swedes and cheer on Canada's young guns

kristen.lipscombe@metronews.ca

With hanging wreaths and wrapping presents comes another important holiday tradition — world juniors.

Here are five reasons to watch the 2015 IIHF world junior championship, starting Boxing Day and concluding with medal games on Jan. 5:

5. Daring Denmark

Denmark may not be the top team at the rink, but will be interesting to watch. The country has earned its way back into the world's best junior tournament after winning gold in the 2014 IIHF U20 World Championship Division I Group. The daring Danes are serious about competing, and they used the World Junior A Challenge, held earlier this month in Kindersley, Sask., as a world juniors warm-up. It's a family affair for head coach Olaf Eller, whose son Mads plays forward for him, and won the 2014 Memorial Cup with the Edmonton Oil Kings.

4. NHL star power

Many junior-age NHL players jump at the chance to wear their country's colours on the ice, and Canadian Anthony Duclair is no exception. The New York Rangers have released him so he can re-join Team Canada at the world juniors. Players such as Jonathan Drouin of the Tampa Bay Lightning, Aaron Ekblad of the Florida Panthers and Nathan MacKinnon of the Colorado Avalanche are staying in the big leagues.

Team Canada players stretch at selection camp on Dec. 15 in St. Catharines, Ont. FRANK GUNN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

3. Swedish vengeance

Sweden is sick of silver. After losing to the U.S. in the 2013 final and falling 3-2 in overtime to rivals Finland in last year's championship game, nothing less than gold will do for the frustrated-with-second-place Swedes. Perhaps more so for forward Jacob de la Rose and defenceman Robert Hagg, who represented their country at both of those world junior disappointments. They have a good chance of getting what they want. Both have also been improving in North America this season, de la Rose with the AHL's Hamilton Bulldogs and Hagg with the AHL's Leigh Valley Phantoms.

2. Russian Wildcats

Forward duo Ivan Barbashev and Vladimir Tkachev aren't just teammates on their country's national junior team, they're also former teammates on the Moncton Wildcats of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League. Yep, a couple of Russian kids have honed their skills together, in the middle of our Maritime provinces. Although Vladimir Tkachev was traded earlier this month to the Quebec Remparts, both like the QMJHL style of play and because of that experience, will be comfortable on the North American-sized ice surfaces in Toronto and Montreal. These two Q-league imports intend to improve on Russia's two straight bronze medals, and reclaim gold-medal bragging rights.

1. It's at home!

Hockey folks know that fans in the stands can become the all important "seventh player" on the ice for the home team, so Canada has a clear advantage this year, since the tournament is taking place in Montreal and Toronto. Whether you're watching on your tablet or television, or seeing it unfold live at Bell Centre or Air Canada Centre, game action will be impacted by an awesome atmosphere, and your cheers for the red and white could make a difference on the road to gold.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

If you are nice to someone who does not deserve it today you will benefit in unexpected ways early in the new year. People in positions of authority will single you out for bigger things.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Try not to waste money on things you do not need. It may not bother you now but in a few weeks time you may regret having been so free and easy with your cash.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Keep personal info to yourself today. You may be tempted to bare your soul and let a certain person in but the planets warn that is not a good idea.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

It may be obvious that a loved one is keeping something from you but there is a good reason. This is one of those occasions when it really is better that you don't know what is going on.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

If someone in a position of authority wants you to do something for them today then most likely you will have no choice in the matter. Make it the best thing you've ever done.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

There is something you want to do with your life but it means giving up so much of what you already know. Is it worth it?

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

If you try to help someone out but they reject your offer, don't take it personally. Most likely they are under such pressure that they can't think straight.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

According to the planets, a loved one is getting emotional for no good reason and it is up to you to calm them down and help them see sense again.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

There is no such thing as a sure thing. Keep that in mind today — you won't go wrong. Certainly not as wrong as some of your friends, who seem to think they can do as they please.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You should be doing more with your talents. You have what it takes to make a mark on the world, so step into the light. Do something out of the ordinary.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You like to be controversial but watch out you don't push it a little too far today and annoy someone you should try to stay on good terms with.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Neptune in your birth sign means you are at your best when you let the caring side of your nature come to the fore. Don't worry that some might take advantage of you — that's a problem for their conscience.
